New Bayco 1,200 Lumen LED Work Lights leverage magnets to attract while providing reel convenience

2 New magnetic LED work lights emit 1,200 lumens on choice of 25' AC-powered cord or 50' retractable metal cord reel

Bayco Products, provider of tough, durable and affordable lighting since 1984 introduced two AC-powered LED work lights to its Bayco corded lighting brand with models SL-2135 and SL-866.

These two lightweight and versatile LED work lights feature a 1,200 Lumens high brightness mode and a 600 Lumens low brightness mode with two separate integrated magnets. With one magnet located at the balance point in the middle of the handle and the other at the tip of the light, users are provided multiple points of attachment for complete hands-free user operation. The wand style handle was even discretely designed with an octagonal shape that keeps the floodlight aimed in the correct direction when placed on its side preventing the light from rolling back and forth on a sloped surface. Both models include a strong detachable magnetic hook that can be attached to either integrated magnet on the light body for additional versatility and convenience.

Bayco model SL-2135 AC powered LED work light features 25' of 18/2 SJT cord, while the Bayco model SL-866 features 50' of 18/2 SVT cord inside of a retractable metal reel with included mounting bracket that attaches to a wall or ceiling. Consumers now have the choice of high-lumen LED lighting at various cord lengths with the option and convenience of a retractable metal cord reel.

“The new Bayco SL-2135 and SL-866 address multiple issues based on consumer market feedback, most importantly the need for high-lumen LED lighting with an adequate method of attachment” says Russell Hoppe, Marketing Manager for Bayco. “Today’s introduction addresses both of these needs and more while providing durability at a sensible low price. Now that’s Innovation Made Better™.”
